New Mexico's Needs.

Mr. T. H. Lawrence gave expression views the other day in the hearing of a GAZETTE reporter, which are Lawrence is one of the heaviest cattle owners in this section of the tarritory, and as such, his views carry great weight. His statement was that the ranges of northern New Mexico are overstocked with cattle already, so much so that the bringing in of additional stock is really criminal. What New Mexico really needs is farmers—energetic, practical, pushing farmers. Those who will use the water advantages to their full extent, and produce Evening subject: "Is it Right to Be Angry?" Those who will use the water advantages to their full extent, and produce large crops of farming products. Chief among these should be alfalfa. There is and will be no conflict of interest between the cattleman and the farmers. On the contrary the cattlemen will find to their interest to use all the grass products of the farmer—hay, alfalfa, ensilage—in wintering their stock. Thus the cattlemen will be a benefit to the farmers in furnishing a market for their products, and the farmers will be a benefit to the cattlemen by enabling them. efit to the cattlemen by enabling them to maintain better herds on their ranges. The two interests in this way will go hand in haud, and in this way New Mexico will become rich and pros-

Rev. Gorman should be careful how he talks with newspaper reporters, else he may appear in a contradictory light. It is a little ungracious, to say the least of it, for a man who receives a favor-able and gratuitous newspaper notice to posture before the public as a misrepresented personage, especially when

The Lewis Boys are determined to dispose of their entire stock, regardless of cost. As it has passed through the fire, thoy are resolved to get rid of it; though scarcely one part in twenty-five received any damage. They wish to fill their shelves with an entirely new stock. Now is the time to get astonishing bargains.

ing bargains. General Fred Walsen, president of the Las Vegas Street Car company, came in yesterday from old Mexico and is, with his wife, the guest of Charley Tamme. General Walsen, who,

There will be services at the M. E. church today as follows: Sunday school at 8:45 s. m., preaching at 11 s. m. and 7:30 p. m. As this is the quarterly meeting occasion. Rev. S. W. Thornton will preach morning and evening, and the sacrement of the Lord's supper will be administered at the close of the morning sermon. The public are in-vited to attend these services.

The Springer Mercantile and Bank The Springer Mercantile and Banking company have just completed a boat to carry freight teams over the Cimarron river at Springer, which will temporarily take the place of the bridge washed away during the recent floods at Springer. All parties along the Ocate and near by country, will now be able to cross the Cimarron river at Springer without fording the stream.

Colonel Pritchard and E. A. Prentice recently returned from a trip which they took together from Mora over the range to Taos. The latter was looking for beef cattle, the former was intention legal labors. They were the first to cross the mountains after the last deep snows. The trip was a difficult one, and in many places dangerous, but they made it in safety. Like all travelers they were charmed with the beauty and fertility of the Mora and Taos valleys, and with their vast possibilities as agricultural regions. So, the, they were impressed with the advantages Las Vegas would derive from a railroad opening up that section of country. The time is near at hand when enterprising colonists will become aware of the natural advantages of those mountages. the natural advantages of those moun-tain retreats. Then the commerce of that section, which even now is of great value, will be of mealculable import-ance. Las Vegas should be reaching out her arms, in the way of roads, and preparing herself to reap the harvest, which soon must fall to the lot of some

P. R. Page, representative of the Western Wool commission house, St. Louis, returned yesterdsy from a successful business trip to points in the Rio Grande valley. He says the loss to the flocks in that section this year has been very great, being estimated by well informed parties at about twenty-five per cent of the entire number. The clip is very backward, the severe clip is very backward, the severe weather of the spring delaying the shearing. The prospects are that the clip will be much less this year than for several years past.
